The plan was to take the '34 Ford Bonnie & Clyde car because it needs a good run.

But the old red Optima battery faltered and it was reluctant to start. We have a good battery booster pack, but somehow I didn't like the idea of having to boost something in front of a thousand spectators – makes the wrong impression.

So I took my trusty outdoor-extension-cord-blue Miata and used it to display our TGIF stories.

There were 800 who registered and a bunch more who just parked on the side streets and by the elevators.

Again, the food was great. The church group (near the T-shirt sales) had a delicious rib dinner for eight bucks! I eat with my hands, so they even agreed to hose me down afterwards. When I was younger, many people recommended that – with cold water. But I digress.

The weather was perfect, even though a tornado touched down just outside town the night before. Fortunately, very little damage – but great for undecided persons to finally spring for an appraisal.

The drag races had about 100 each day, and went over well.

These pictures made the final cut.
